The Oroqen, the Last Hunters

By KIM In-hee, KIM Chon-ho, SUH Young-dae, CHO Woo-hyun, HAN Youfeng, WU Yazhi, GUAN Xiaoyun
225x152mm | 440 pages | 2016 | Chunga Books | 18,000 Korea Won | ISBN 978-89-368-1097-9

The Oroqen are the last people to maintain a primarily hunting based lifestyle in China. Studying their society and culture may lead to a major key to unlocking the secrets behind ancient hunting cultures in Northeast Asia. The Oroqen used to hunt around the Xinganling Mountain until the Chinese government made efforts to settle them down since 1905 so that they have now settled as farmers in Hulunbuir of the Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region and in the Xinganling region of Heilongjiang Province. While anthropological research on northeast China has remained near absent in Korea, this book is a result of joint research efforts by Korean and Chinese scholars to assist in gaining an overall understanding of the Oroqen by covering their language, history, society, production activities, food, clothing, housing, religious practices, rites of passage, and myths.

Historical Atlas : Concept and Methodology

By Peter BOL et al.
127x188mm | 296 pages | 2017 | KRW 11,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-456-4

This publication is a collection of revised papers about concepts, cases, and methods of producing historical atlases in different countries. The papers were originally presented at "The International Conference on Compiling Historical Atlases" co-hosted by the Northeast Asian History Foundation and the Korean Cartographic Association in May 2016. Since the publication aims to provide an objective assessment of the international standard for compiling historical atlases and the status of historical atlas compilation in Korea, it should serve as a textbook for aspiring historical atlas compilers who wish to learn about internationally recognized standards and production methods.

The Hezhe, Fishers of the Amur River

Edited by NAHF Institute of Korea-China Relations

225x152mm | 424 pages | 2017 | Chunga Books | KRW 19,000 | ISBN 978-89-368-1119-8

The Hezhe are an ethnic minority, called the Nanai people in Russian, interspersed along the Heilongjiang (Amur) River throughout China and Russia. With only 5,000 of them left, the Hezhe's traditional culture is rapidly heading toward extinction. This book offers a report on the traditional way of life of a people on the brink of obsolescence by introducing the Hezhe's language, history, social structure, production activities, rites of passage, shamanic practices, and cultures related to clothing, food, and housing.

The Hezhe are of Sushen descent, an ethnic origin that differs from Koreans of the Yemaek descent. However, similar natural environments and continued exchange between the two peoples have resulted in many cultural commonalities that require comparative research. Hence, the book should be a useful source to those attempting to conduct comparative studies between the Hezhe and Korean cultures.

Trends in Chinese Research on Koguryo History Since the Northeast Project : Analysis and Criticism, 2007-2015

By KIM Hyun-sook, JO Yeong-kwang, AN Jeong-jun, LEE Jun-sung,

LEE Jeong-bin, JUNG Dong-min, LEE Seung-ho

225x152mm | 320 pages | 2017 | Yeoksa Gonggan | KRW 19,000 | ISBN 979-11-5707-147-0

Controversies over historical facts arose between Korea and China in 2002 when China launched the "Serial Research Project on the History and Current State of the Northeast Borderland" (hereinafter referred to as the Northeast Project). This publication summarizes an analysis by six up-and-coming scholars on whether there have been any changes in arguments related to controversial subjects from the Northeast Project and how Chinese scholars have been approaching Koguryo history since the Northeast Project's termination in 2007. Thorough analysis of and criticism toward Chinese and Korean research efforts, categorized by subject, should be able to broaden the range and depth of research on Koguryo history and eventually contribute to its restoration.

Kraskino : Tales of Balhae's Yeomju Castle

KIM Eun-kuk et al.

225x152mm | 300 pages | 2017 | Chunga Books | KRW 19,500 | ISBN 978-89-368-1118-1

Kraskino in Russia is where one of the ancient Korean kingdom Balhae's 62 administrative units used to exist. The area's location allowed it to function as a hub of exchange with Silla and Japan via the East Sea and with the Tang dynasty and other Western regions via land routes. Yeomju Castle carries significance for being one of the few, relatively intact Balhae remains left that is allowed to be excavated in the kingdom's territory that used to spread across what is now Russia, China, and North Korea.

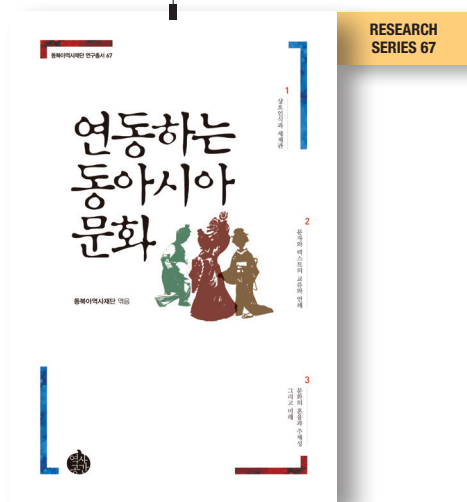

This book co-authored by Korean and Russian scholars and accompanied by a collection of various photographs covers all findings made so far since the first excavation of Yeomju Castle in 1980. It is expected to serve as a rare, yet basic source for studying Balhae history by showing archaeological developments pertaining to not only Yeomju Castle, but the lifestyle and culture of Balhae people.

Interconnected East Asian Cultures

Edited by Northeast Asian History Foundation

225x152mm | 432 pages | 2016 | Yeoksa gonggan | KRW 22,500 | ISBN 979-11-5707-137-1

As the modern times became caught up in imperialism, colonialism, or anti-colonialism, structured relations of conflict emerged and pushed that history of conflict to an extreme. A country would vividly experience failure due to the success of its neighboring countries. Postwar experiences of conflict submerged below historical memories came to later surface most apparently and directly through historical issues. There seems to be no way to resolve historical controversies but to practically engage in endless dialogue.

This publication introduces a collection of papers presented at an international academic conference sponsored by the Northeast Asian History Foundation and hosted annually by the East Asian History Forum, which has been formed to facilitate intersectoral communication between the government, civic organization, and academia.

“Worlds” in Stories of Foreign Nations From the Official Histories of China

By KIM Joung-hee, SONG Jung-soo, JEONG Myeon, KIM You-cheol, PARK Jih-hun, SONG Mi-ryeong

225x152mm | 472 pages | 2016 | Yeoksa gonggan | KRW 29,000 | ISBN 979-11-5707-138-8

This book can be considered as the finishing touch to a series published under the title “Annotated Translation of the Stories of Foreign Nations in the Official Histories of China.” The annotated translation not only reveals the system and method of description used in the Stories of Foreign Nations, but also provides a rich, detailed insight into how traditional China understood history and the world, and the ethnic, border issues it experienced. Unfortunately, the annotated translation covers such a vast temporal and spatial range that it is difficult to gain a comprehensive grasp of the series. That is why this publication has been arranged to offer a systematic summary and explanation of what can be gathered from the extensive Stories of Foreign Nations. Hopefully, this book may serve as a stepping stone for motivating and launching related studies in the future.

On the Modern Meaning of the Korea-Japan Treaty of Amity

Edited by NAHF Institute of Korea-Japan Relations

225x152mm | 328 pages | 2017 | Chunga Books | KRW 20,000 | ISBN 978-89-368-1121-1

This book examines what Japan meant to achieve through the Korea-Japan Treaty of Amity, what circumstances Japan had been in, and how Joseon reacted at the time. It also considers what the treaty represents within the macroscopic context of Joseon's modern history and its relations with Japan. Research on the treaty has so far primarily relied on records left by the Japanese, whereas this book introduces the first study based on unpublished sources most Japanese scholars are likely to be unfamiliar with, including "Simhaeng ilgi" by Widang Sin Heon who served as a delegate of Joseon in negotiating the Ganghwa Treaty. This publication should therefore be able to contribute to critically reviewing the discourse of modern history formed mainly by Japanese scholars over the past century and to engaging Korean views in shedding new light on its modern history.

The Continued and Discontinued Postwar Japanese Paradigm

Edited by JEON Jin-ho

225x152mm | 390 pages | 2017 | Chunga Books | KRW 22,000 | ISBN 978-89-368-1120-4

As the postwar generation emerged to the forefront in the 2000s, bold policy changes have taken place in Japan, especially since the Abe administration took power. This has been made obvious through historical revisionism, active pacifism, and Abenomics. Japan's postwar generation has continually tried to break away from the postwar system but has at the same time maintained the postwar paradigm.

This book employs a critical awareness toward the postwar paradigm's continuance and discontinuance in order to identify the Abe administration trying to fully break away from the postwar system as a transitional situation caused by a switch in the policy paradigm to match changing domestic circumstances. The identification is then used to analyze each policy and sector of Japan today where remains and changes of the postwar paradigm coexist and thereby suggest a new paradigm that better describes Japan since the 2000s.

Korean Translation of Cheonggye jungilhan gwangye saryo, Volume 3

Translated by KIM Hyoung-chong, YOON Hyong-jin, LEE Won-jun, KIM Chang-su, CHO Byung-sik
127x188mm | 352 pages | 2016 | KRW 13,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-448-9

The translated sources introduced through this publication were originally part of a compilation titled “Cheonggye jungilhan gwangye saryo,” a collection of documents from the late Qing dynasty that involve the diplomatic relations between Korea, China, and Japan. The documents now kept at the archives of Academia Sinica’s Institute of Modern History have been arranged by theme in Cheonggye jungilhan gwangye saryo which includes nearly the entire section of Joseondang (朝鮮檔, Joseon Documents) among a collection of documents from the Division of International Affairs under the Premier’s Office. The Korean translation of Cheonggye jungilhan gwangye saryo is therefore meant to function as a turning point for advancing research on modern Korea’s international relations in East Asia. Along with the publication’s first two volumes, this third volume offers translations about Joseon’s relations with China and Japan prior to the First Sino-Japanese War in order to serve as a basic source for studying the history of modern Korea and international relations in East Asia.

A Study of International Rulings on Territorial and Maritime Disputes

Edited by NAHF Institute of Dokdo Research
225x152mm | 438 pages | 2017 | Pakyoungsa | KRW 29,000 | ISBN 979-11-303-3133-1

The Permanent Court of Arbitration’s ruling at The Hague in 2016 on the dispute between the Philippines and China over the South China Sea captured the international society’s attention as the ruling of the century. The ruling caused further academic studies to take place in Korea on international rulings related to territorial and maritime issues, especially those by the International Court of Justice that requires consent from all states involved in order to proceed with each case including that concerning the Korean sovereignty of Dokdo. This book conveys the outcome of a joint research project that covered a total of 31 cases representative of international disputes over land and maritime boundaries and the sovereignty of islands, including the 2016 South China Sea ruling. It is expected to contribute to raising the academic level of scholars and experts on territorial and maritime issues.

The Annotated Translation of the Stories of Foreign Nations in the Official Histories of China Series

: The First Interpretation of the Stories of East Asian Countries

The Annotated Translation of the Stories of Foreign Nations in the Official Histories of China series is designed to identify the foreign nations in The Stories of Foreign Nations in the official histories of China, and correctly understand the ideological principles and framework underlying their perception of foreign countries.

In principle, the official histories of China served the purpose of establishing a unified perception of history by state power, although the motivation or process of compilation differed from period to period, and it was inevitable that their structure or content strongly reflected the positions of the Chinese dynasties.

What made the official Chinese histories still worth translating and annotating was that their perception of foreign countries not only reflected the situations of the time but also had the potential as a reference that captured the essence of the Sinocentric perceptions of history, borders, and the world. While the Chinese dynasties left behind extensive records of other countries in The Stories of Foreign Nations included in their official histories, the neighboring countries or peoples didn't leave behind as many historical records written from their point of view.

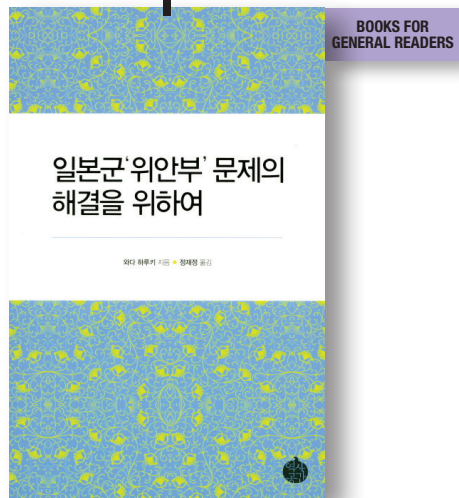

In this respect, the correct understanding and research of The Stories of Foreign Nations in the official histories of China is expected to contribute to understanding not only the history and culture of pre-modern East Asian countries but also various East Asian international relations, including Korea-China relations.

To Resolve the Japanese Military “Comfort Women” Issue

By Wada Haruki, Translated by Chung Jae-jeong

225x152mm | 296 pages | 2016 | Yeoksa gonggan | KRW 14,500 | ISBN 979-11-5707-104-3

On December 28, 2015, the Korean and Japanese Ministers of Foreign Affairs announced an agreement for resolving the Japanese military “comfort women” issue. Since then, both countries’ governments have tried to execute the agreement by discussing follow-up measures and establishing a foundation, but such efforts have been met with strong disapproval by some comfort women victims and their supporters who are calling for the agreement’s annulment and establishing a foundation of their own in resistance. This publication describes the origin and nature of the Japanese military comfort women issue, points out the progress made and limitations to efforts for the issue’s resolution, and offers an assessment of the agreement along with supportive measures that may be necessary. This book also attempts to suggest an ideal resolution devised from a detailed account of developments on the issue.

Revisiting the Fifty Years of the Agreement between South Korea and Japan V : Introspecting and Searching for a Peaceful Community

By Doh See-hwan et al.

225x152mm | 440 pages | 2016 | Yeoksa gonggan | KRW 20,000 | ISBN 979-11-5707-119-7

This book is the final volume resulting from a five-year research project between 2011 and 2015 in which Korean, Japanese, Chinese, American, and German experts participated to conduct an in-depth review and objective analysis to identify the true nature behind the historical conflicts between Korea and Japan and to search for ways to resolve such conflicts and move toward a future-oriented, peaceful community. This series is aimed at helping views on historical justice to be shared between Korea and Japan so that the two countries can establish a foundation for true historical reconciliation and form a community of peace.

A Study on Koguryo Mountain Fortresses

By Chung Won-chul

225x152mm | 532 pages | 2017 | KRW 25,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-463-2

This book is a Korean translation of the thesis for which the late Chung Won-chul received his doctoral degree from Jilin University before he became a research fellow at the Northeast Asian History Foundation. Published to commemorate the first anniversary of the author's death, this book is an informative representation of what he studied, which sources he reviewed, and all the field trips he took to explore mountain fortresses of the ancient Korean kingdom Koguryo.

To uncover the detailed features of Koguryo mountain fortresses and archaeologically identify their true nature, the thesis analyzes their characteristics, construction methods, and forms of distribution so as to trace how such characteristics changed throughout the kingdom's development. The book thereby serves as a source of information immediately useful in studying the royal castles of Koguryo, how the kingdom developed its forces, where its transportation routes spread toward, and how its major wars unfolded.

Mount Baekdu is a sacred mountain to Koreans. In Korea, mountains have traditionally been understood as a source of life and an object of worship so that land including mountains were regarded as primitive elements of life.

Old maps not only provide regional details, but can also be copious visual sources of historical, geographical data. This atlas contains a comprehensive collection of old maps featuring Mount Baekdu and the water system surrounding it, which can be used as a basic source for research. Efforts to produce this atlas were mainly concentrated on collecting old maps that include Mount Baekdu and representing them in the finest possible quality. Besides illustrations of old maps containing Mount Baekdu that are accompanied by arguments and annotations about them, the atlas also includes an appendix comprised of close-up detailed maps of the mountain, bibliographic details on all maps in the atlas, and an index.

Koguryo Mountain Fortresses in Pyeongando

Compiled by the NAHF Research Institute of Korea-China Relations

152x218mm | 300 pages | 2017 | KRW 39,000 | ISBN 978-89-6187-464-9

Throughout the provinces of North and South Pyeongan that touch the downstream of Amnok River and include the entire basin area of the Daedong River, Koguryo mountain fortresses are situated in the western or inland areas of North Pyeongando and around the kingdom's capital to defend the castle located there. The defense system of Koguryo's fortresses incorporates coastal and rural operations, transportation route operations, deep, close, and rear operations, regional operations, and waterway operations. By piling finely cut stone blocks into tall, sturdy walls, Koguryo fortresses in Pyeongando have been built at locations nearby main roads that are economically, geographically advantageous for defense. This book contains photographs to show the characteristics of Koguryo mountain fortresses remaining in Pyeongando and describes the techniques Koguryo people used to build fortress walls.
